IV. Table of multilateral peace operations, 2012

JANE DUNDON*

Table 2.2 provides data on the 53 multilateral peace operations that were conducted during 2012, including operations that were launched or terminated during the year. By definition, a peace operation must have the stated intention of (a) serving as an instrument to facilitate the implementation of peace agreements already in place, (b) supporting a peace process or (c) assisting conflict-prevention or peacebuilding efforts.

SIPRI follows the United Nations Department of Peacekeeping Operations (DPKO) description of peacekeeping as a mechanism to assist conflict-afflicted countries to create conditions for sustainable peace. Peacekeeping tasks may include monitoring and observing ceasefire agreements; serving as confidence-building measures; protecting the delivery of humanitarian assistance; assisting with the demobilization and reintegration processes; strengthening institutional capacities in the areas of the judiciary and the rule of law (including penal institutions), policing, and human rights; electoral support; and economic and social development. Table 2.2 thus covers a broad range of peace operations, reflecting the growing complexity of operation mandates and the potential for operations to change over time. The table does not include good offices, fact-finding or electoral assistance missions, nor does it include peace operations comprising non-resident individuals or teams of negotiators, or operations not sanctioned by the UN.

The table lists operations that were conducted under the authority of the UN, operations conducted by regional organizations and alliances, and operations conducted by ad hoc (non-standing) coalitions of states that were sanctioned by the UN or authorized by a UN Security Council resolution. UN operations are divided into three subgroups: (a) observer and multidimensional peace operations run by the DPKO, (b) special political and peacebuilding missions, and (c) the joint African Union/UN Hybrid Operation in Darfur (UNAMID).

The table draws on the SIPRI Multilateral Peace Operations Database, <<http://www.sipri.org/databases/pko>>, which provides information on all UN and non-UN peace operations conducted since 2000, including location, dates of deployment and operation, mandate, participating countries, number of personnel, costs and fatalities.

UN Supervision Mission in Syria (UNSMIS)

UNSMIS was established by SCR 2043 (21 Apr. 2012) and was mandated for an initial period of 90 days to monitor a cessation of armed violence in all forms by all parties and to monitor and support the implementation of the Joint Arab League–UN Special Envoy's six-point plan to end the conflict in Syria. The mission was suspended on 15 June 2012 due to an escalation of violence. SCR 2059 (30 July 2012) renewed the mandate for another 30 days, and made any further renewal conditional on a sufficient reduction in violence to allow UNSMIS monitors to fulfil their mandate. However, the mission was terminated on 19 Aug. 2012 due to continued violence. It was to be replaced with a special liaison office mandated to support efforts towards a political solution to the Syrian crisis (S/2012/618), but such an office had not opened by the end of 2012.

^a Where cause of death can be attributed, the 4 figures in parentheses are, respectively, deaths due to hostilities, accident, illness and other causes in 2011. As causes of death were not reported for all deaths in the year, these figures do not always add up to the total annual fatality figure.

Sources and methods

Methods

The figures for approved personnel numbers listed are those most recently authorized for 2012. Numbers of locally recruited support staff and volunteers are not included in the table but, where available, are given in the notes. For European Union (EU) operations, the approved total civilian personnel number is given in the civilian police row. The category 'observers' includes both military and civilian observers.

Personnel fatalities are recorded since the beginning of an operation and in 2012. Known causes of death—whether hostile acts, accidents, illness or other causes—are recorded for fatalities in 2012. As causes of death were not reported for all deaths in the year, these figures do not always add up to the total annual fatality figure. While the UN provides data on fatalities of locally recruited staff, other organizations and alliances do not.

Costs are reported in millions of US dollars at 2012 prices. The budget figures are given for the calendar year rather than for financial years. Costs for the calendar year are calculated on the assumption of an even rate of spending throughout the financial year. Budgets set in currencies other than the US dollar are converted based on the International Monetary Fund's aggregated market exchange rates for 2012. The costs recorded for UN and Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE) operations are the amounts budgeted. The figures provided for other operations represent actual spending.

The costs recorded for UN operations are core operational costs, which include the cost of deploying personnel, per diem payments for deployed personnel and direct non-field support costs (e.g. requirements for the support account for peace operations and the UN logistics base in Brindisi, Italy). The cost of UN peace operations is shared by all UN member states through a specially derived scale of assessed contributions that takes no account of their participation in the operations. Political and peacebuilding operations are funded through regular budget contributions. UN peacekeeping budgets do not cover programmatic costs, such as those for disarmament, demobilization and reintegration, which are financed by voluntary contributions.

The costs recorded for operations conducted by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) only represent common costs. These include mainly the running costs of the NATO headquarters (i.e. costs for civilian personnel and costs for operation and maintenance) and investments in the infrastructure necessary to support the operation. The costs of deploying personnel are borne by individual contributing states and are not reflected in the figures given here.

Most EU operations are financed in one of two ways: civilian missions are funded through the Common Foreign and Security Policy (CFSP) budget, while military operations or operations with a military component are funded by contributions by the participating member states through the Athena mechanism.

No figures for cost are provided for Commonwealth of Independent States (CIS) operations as there is no designated common budget and countries participating in the missions bear the cost of troop deployments.

In operations conducted or led by other organizations, such as by the Organization of American States (OAS) or ad hoc coalitions, budget figures may include resources for programme implementation.

For all these reasons, the budget figures presented in table 2.2 are estimates and the budgets for different operations should not be compared.

Unless otherwise stated, all figures are as of 31 December 2012 or, in the case of operations that were terminated in 2012, the date of closure.

Sources

Data on multilateral peace operations is obtained from the following categories of open source: (a) official information provided by the secretariat of the organization concerned;

(b) information provided by operations themselves, either in official publications or in written responses to annual SIPRI questionnaires; and (c) information from national governments contributing to the operation under consideration. In some instances, SIPRI researchers may gather additional information on an operation from the conducting organizations or governments of participating states by means of telephone interviews and email correspondence. These primary sources are supplemented with a wide selection of publicly available secondary sources consisting of specialist journals, research reports, news agencies, and international, regional and local newspapers.
